	The Department of Accountancy – University of Malta – in collaboration with Malta University Consulting is holding the ninth CPE seminar for 2025 which qualifies for 3 hours (Core Competencies) of Continued Professional Education.
Seminar content	Personal taxation effects the disposable income of an individual and is a tool which governments use to alter, influence and encourage economic behaviour. In the Budget Speech for the year 2026 it has been announced that new tax rates shall come into effect, applicable to parents and married couples raising children. This seminar shall delve into the changing landscape of personal taxation during the last decade, highlighting the motivation underlying such changes. Legislative changes typically find their basis in social infrastructural changes and new emerging civil rights. Although, personal taxation changes have been reactive in nature, fiscal policy can also be proactive in shaping future social behaviour and economic results. The purpose of the seminar is to provide an overview of a number of legislative changes concerning personal income taxation in Malta and duty on documents. Participants shall be guided through the tax implications with a view that such participants would be in a position to understand such changes and be better prepared to assess tax payers to tax and file income tax returns appropriately. A number of fiscal amendments shall be reviewed, explained and also analysed for pitfalls by way of examples. A selection of numeric cases shall be presented to highlight salient features.
Speaker's Bio	Mr. Roderick Borg is an accountant by profession. He joined the tax function of KPMG after graduating with a first class degree in both the B. Com course and the B. Accty (Hons.) course from the University of Malta. In 2010, Mr Borg was awarded the diploma in taxation with distinction from the Malta Institute of Taxation. He is currently a Director involved in the provision of direct and indirect tax compliance and advisory services to domestic and international corporate and individual clients. He advises organisations and individuals on various tax matters relating to cross-border and domestic transactions. He assists clients with the implementation of restructuring processes and actively handles corporate liquidation issues. Roderick regularly delivers training courses relating to tax matter. He also delivers lectures in various seminars and professional educational activities relating to taxation matters including taxation modules to students reading for their ACCA qualification.
