Aims/ Objectives	This course serves to give a comprehensive view of what it takes to manage a condominium. The Participants will be made familiar with the Condominium Act and the regulations made thereunder. They will be in a position to implement the terms and conditions found in the contracts creating the condominium and the regulations governing it.
Who should attend	Persons interested in proper condominium management, condominium owners, new and experienced Administrators and real estate agents should attend.
Course content	This course provides participants with the tools necessary for the proper and efficient management of a condominium. The course will cover: (a) an analysis of the Condominium Act [Chapter 398, Laws of Malta] as a foundation; (b) financial management; (c) condominium building and maintenance management; (d) managing day-to-day condominium operations; (e) tackling disputes that arise between the condomini; (f) referring disputes to arbitration if unresolved amicably.
Course Outcomes	By the end of this course, students will be able to comprehend the role of the Administrator in a condominium and the responsibilities that come with that position. They will understand the need to prepare and manage a budget for the condominium and interpret financial statements. It is the scope of this course that the Participants can deal with all the day-to-day operations and administration of the condominium. Attention will be given to the skills required by the Administrator to be familiar with the physical aspects of the building concerned and put in place good maintenance practices for the condominium.
